

APPLY TO BE AN ECO FACILITATOR!

Wesleyan's very own peer-to-peer sustainability educators

The Wesleyan Sustainability Office is seeking frosh and sophomores to serve as Eco Facilitators for the 2016-2017 school year! Eco Facilitators (EFs) work with first-year students and Res Life to serve as a resource on how to adopt sustainable lifestyles that take into account unequal access to resources.

In Spring 2016, EFs will enroll in a semester-long, half-credit student forum focused on theories and strategies for sustainable behavior change. During the 2016-2017 school year, EFs will be paid to implement these strategies. Working as an Eco Facilitator is a great opportunity to gain leadership skills and take part in building a more sustainable, equitable, and inclusive campus community.

Testimonials

"The class has been successful at instilling a mindset where I am really thinking about the implications and conditions of every action/program before it is set in motion."

"I learned so much...not only about the environment and the state of our world, but also about the ways in which people's minds work, both individually and collectively. These new understandings will help me in all the things I'm passionate about. If you want to see change in the world, being an Eco Facilitator will help you to make it. "

Application deadline EXTENDED to 11:59 PM on Tuesday, December 8th.
The application can be found on the Wesleyan Sustainability Website!

More information is available through the website or by emailing ecofacilitators@wesleyan.edu

<http://www.wesleyan.edu/sustainability/students/eco-facilitators.html>